The House Has Spoken: ABC for Health Statement on the Passage of Healthcare Reform

Madison- After nearly a century of contentious debate, health care reform will be the law of our land. The concept of “we” the people imagined and immortalized by our country's founders has again prevailed over the selfish perspective of “me.” The enormity of this moment and of these times is both startling and profound. Over 32 million of our fellow citizens are now on course to secure the health care coverage they have long deserved—and that many of their forefathers never had. Our country realizes this dream now, in a time where the words life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness ring with new resonance. America finally joins the community of nations that requires health care for all people. Today, most Americans stand together to continue on a path to health care for all in furtherance of our ideals toward a more perfect union.
